New Probation Officer Necessary, as Rev. James Buchanan Will Retire.

New Laws Are Adequate, but Manufacturers Protest Against Pipe Lines Ordered Out, and Means of Enforcement Are Lacking.

Lack of interest on the part of the public is the greatest obstacle which confronts the Juvenile Protective Soin a general discussion at the annual meeting held last night in the auditorium of Murphy's Hotel.

It was pointed out by several speakers that the services of a probation officer, whose duty would be to appear in Police Court to see that juvenile offenders received the protection due them, is needed, It was said that the officer who makes an arrest, or of a child or hardened crimas performed his actual duty in ing crime, but he naturally destopping crime, but he naturally desires to secure a conviction. Need Probation Officer.

The need of a paid probation officer was apparent, and it was announced that Rev. James Buchanan, secretary of the society, and who has been acting as probation officer during the past two years, will be forced to give up the work on account of other duties, mainly those entailed as secretary of the Associated Charities. The question will be taken up at the next meeting of the board of trustees,

Former Governer Andrew Jackson Montague, who has been acting president of the society, and who presided at last night's meeting, deplored the dent of the society, and who presided at last night's meeting, deplored the lack of interest shown by the public. He said that steps should be taken to arouse enthusiasm that the laws which were enacted at the last session of the General Assembly through the efforts of the society may be enforced, "We have ample authority and power now, but we must arouse some enthusiasm and interest to enforce it," said the former Chief Executive of the State.

"Since our last annual meeting," continued Governor Montague, "we have secured one of our fundamental objects—the enactment of laws for have secured one of our fundamental objects—the enactment of laws for the protection of boys and girls. We have all on paper we want, and the object which now confronts us to secure the enforcement of the laws."

As secretary of the society, Dr Buchanan submitted a report, which showed that during the year beginning October 1, 1909, and ending September 30, 1910, sixty-feur boys and girls came under the protection of the organization. Thirty-four girls and eight boys were taken from the pollee, parents or guardians, streets, Children's Home Society and other sources. Most of these were placed in suitable institutions, some were returned to their parents or guardians, while others were parents or guardians, while others were secured positions and given work. At the present time the society is low in the matter of finances, there being a balance of but $52 in the treas-

BREAKAGE SHOWN HENCE

Proposition-Adjourned to To-Day.

Earnest resistance was made yesterday before the State Corporation Comshippers to the effort of the petitioning railroads to secure an order requiring the crating of all stoves shipped in less than car load lots. The trastate shipments conform to the recently enacted requirements of the Incently enacted requirements of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Southern, the Norfolk and Western, the Louisville and Nashville, the Atlantic Coast Line, the Seaboard Air Line, the Virginia and Southwestedn and other roads have formally joined in the petition. Most of these were represented yesterday by counsel. C. V. Meredith appeared for the stove-makers, and the hearing was enlivened by innumerable objections on his part to the introduction of testimony, and by tilts between counsel.

Indly Dnumged Stove.

An episode was the introduction as stoves Captain Lea recalled eight damaged specimens.

The cross-examination by Mr. Meredith was evidently intended to show that Virginia-made stoves are of better construction than others, and that so large a percentage of breakage would not occur in this State.

W. H. Gatchell, superintendent of transfers for the Southern Railway, presented some data which he had gathered on the subject from 550 of the station agents on that system. This met with strenous objection from Mr. Meredith, who said the witness could not have been present at 550 places, even if he had divided himself up. He protested against his clients being placed at the mercy of one witness. Mr. Gatchell said the detained proofs would probably fill two or three box cars, and Judge Prentis said it would he impractical to get this, and admitted the evidence. Mr. Meredith filed another exception.

Mr. Gatchell's statement showed that Figures Presented.

Mr. Gatchell's statement showed that for the last three months of 1910, following the ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission, 8,968 ztoves were received crated at the 550 stations on the Southern. Of these, 364 were reported damaged, making an average of 468 per cent. Claims filed amounted to $517,93, or 5.92 per cent. of the earnings from the freight charges on the whole amount, and those paid amounted to $368.88, or 4.22 per cent, of the earnings. Against this he placed the 6,479 uncrated stoves received during the same time. Of these 665, or 16.91 per cent, were damaged, while the claims filed amounted to $1.275.34, or 27.69 per cent, of the revenue. Claims paid were 18.17 of the revenue, being $38.94.

The percentage of all freight claims paid to total freight earnings of the road during 1910, said Mr. Gatchell, was 2.11.

On cross-examination, Mr. Meredith

Not a Comparison.
On cross-examination, Mr. Meredith referred to a statement made by Mr. Gatchell for use before the Tennessee Railroad Commission, and which show-Railroad Commission, and which showed, according to the witness, the large breakage of stoves. Mr. Meredith's aim was to show that it was an unfair statement, inasmuch as it took into account only those shipments of which complaint was made as to damage. The witness insisted that it was in no sensa intended to be a comparison. When Mr. Meredith referred to a letter "exposing" this statement, Mr. Northrop got up and with some feeling said the paper spoke for itself, and that he was not responsible for "people who did not understand it."

Several citizens of Henrico county, it was learned yesterday, have entered into an agreement to test the wide tiro law, which will go into effect March 23. Residents of the county are thoroughly aroused over the law of the supervisors, which will require nearly all owners to equip their vehicles with new tires. Difficulty was experienced in Chesterfield when the wide tire law was put into effect in that county. For the first few days there were numerous arrests for violations. Farmers and other residents refused to buy new wheels, and public sentiment was go strong against the law that after a few weeks little attempt was made to enforce it.
